JAPANESE ENVOY FLIES TO U.S.

SUPPOSED EFFORT FOR PACIFIC PEACE

THE Japanese-American situation is at such a critical stage that the less said about it at present the better, was the view expressed by sources close to Mr. Cordell Hull yesterday in Washington.

Great interest is taken in America and other countries in the news of the flight of Mr. Saburu Kurusu from Tokyo to Washington, carrying, according to some reports, "important instructions" which may contain the final Japanese stand. He is acting as personal envoy for both the Japanese Premier and Foreign Minister.

One view expressed in Tokyo was that the envoy was probably carrying final advices to the Japanese Ambassador seeking a definite outcome of the Washington discussions, while the Domei Agency said that his mission is to make clear to Washington the limits that Japan considers necessary for her existence and national prestige.

OPINIONS IN TOKYO

Other sources considered it possible that Kurusu was empowered to reiterate that Japan would not fight the United States under the Axis pact obligations, providing Washington recognises Japan's aims in the Far East. Admiral Nomura was instructed to present a similar promise when he first went to Washington.

Japan would evade her obligations to the Axis, says Associated Press in a message from Manilla, by reserving judgment whether Germany was actually attacked, but Japan is unable to renounce the pact because of the Imperial rescript, which is inviolable and commands support of the pact.

Foreigners in Tokyo who are competent to speak, commenting on Mr. Saburu Kurusu's departure, observe that he is most likely to be carrying final advices to Admiral Nomura, the Japanese Ambassador, seeking a definite outcome one way or the other in the Washington discussions, says a Reuter telegram from Tokyo.

This, they say, dovetails with the initial impression that General Tojo, new Premier, desires clarification of the situation as soon as possible in order to make explanations to the Diet. In any case, the "special adviser's" departure fits in with the apparent purpose of the current Press campaign to justify allegations that Tokyo has done all that is possible for an amicable solution.

"FINAL EFFORT"

Mr. Kurusu, says the Domei Agency, left by 'plane yesterday for Hong Kong, where it is understood the United States Clipper was delayed for him so that he could reach Washington about November 17.—(Reuter.)

The Domei Agency says the despatch of Mr. Kurusu is regarded in Tokyo as a "final diplomatic effort" by Japan towards ameliorating the tense situation in the Pacific. "He is entrusted with the task, observers believe, of making clear to Washington the limits which Japan considers necessary for her existence and national prestige.

"There is much to hope from the mission, and Japan's action further bears out her peaceful intentions," the Agency adds.—(Reuter.)

WASHINGTON SILENT

Meanwhile the State Department in Washington yesterday withheld any statement on Mr. Kurusu's forthcoming trip but a source close to Mr. Cordell Hull, Secretary of State, explained this reticence with the observation that the Japanese-American situation was at such a critical stage that the less said about it the better until there was something positive to announce.

Mr. Cordell Hull said yesterday that the State Department co-operated with Japan in facilitating arrangements for Kurusu's trans-Pacific flight, but asserted that such collaboration was merely in the nature of the courtesies usually extended to a foreign emissary. He knew of no new proposal for Far Eastern settlement being brought here by Mr. Kurusu.—(Associated Press.)

MR. DUFF COOPER'S CO-ORDINATION PLAN

Mr. Duff Cooper, Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster, said yesterday, in Sydney, that a member of his staff was already on his way to London bearing preliminary proposals for co-ordinating the work of the many British Ministers, Consuls and Government departments in Far-Eastern countries.

The plans, he added, could not be completed until they had received Australian approval.

If war broke out in the Pacific, he continued, some new kind of organisation would have to be created, and Australia and New Zealand should be represented on it, if they so wished. The co-ordination of the fighting forces was no part of his inquiry, added Mr. Cooper, who said that it was "easier to pick the winner of a horse race than to guess what Japan was going to do next. One knows something is going to win the horse race, but in Japan's case nothing at all may happen. The attack on the Burma Road may be one of the starters."

Senator R. V. Keane, Australian Minister of Trade and Customs, and Vice-President of the Executive Council, welcomed the British Minister, and said that the precariousness of the Pacific situation had been tardily recognised by Britain, but there was no doubt that Mr. Duff Cooper's visit would do much to clear up any doubts they may have had regarding the support to be expected in the event of aggression.—(Reuter.)

VICHY, Wednesday.—Vichy spokesmen claimed to-night that a British 'plane loaded with propaganda for General de Gaulle had been captured in unoccupied France when forced down due to bad weather.

It was reported that the 'plane landed near Perigueux on November 3.

U-BOATS OFF NEWFOUNDLAND

"COMING CLOSER TO AMERICA"

GERMAN U-boats were operating "off the coast of Newfoundland within sight of the shore," the Canadian Navy Minister, Mr. Angus Macdonald, stated yesterday, according to a Reuter telegram from Toronto.

Mr. Macdonald said that he made this disclosure with the approval of Rear-Admiral Percy Nelles, the Naval Chief of Staff. He was on a visit to Toronto to take part in the dedication of a new corvette.

REPORTED SINKINGS

Mr. Macdonald was asked by reporters to amplify the report he gave the House of Commons on Tuesday night, when he said that Canadian ships had sunk more than one U-boat.

"Well," he replied, "you can say that there are submarines right off the coast of Newfoundland—that they are actually within sight of the shore. Naturally, we are attacking them wherever we can find them. So are the patrol 'planes of the Air Force Coastal Command.

Mr. Macdonald commented:—"We usually find them by sound and attack by depth charge. They (the 'planes) sight them and attack with bombs, but we are working very closely together.

CONVOY ATTACKED

A telegram from New York last night stated that marine observers point out that the presence of U-boats within sight of the coast of Newfoundland was forecast several months ago, when German submarines attacked and sank three ships in convoy under 280 miles from St. John's. The Germans, they say, have been getting closer and closer to the American Continent as diplomatic relations between Germany and the United States have worsened.

Unofficial reports from New York state that several submarines have been sunk by Canadian aircraft based on St. John's.

LATE NEWS

U.S. TECHNICIANS MISSING IN ATLANTIC

NEW YORK, Wednesday.—Nineteen people, mostly Americans travelling to England with the civilian Technical Corps, were presumed lost at sea on a ship which had been sunk, announced the British Press Service to-night.

The Service added that it had been requested to make the announcement on behalf of the R.A.F.—(Reuter.)

REMEMBRANCE DAY

This year's Remembrance Day ceremonies will be on the somewhat restricted scale of last year. Since the outbreak of war the parade through the streets has been abandoned, and this year the same procedure will be followed.

On Sunday next (Remembrance Sunday) Mass will be celebrated in the Pro-Cathedral at 11 a.m. The ex-Service men attending this Mass will assemble at Eden quay and march to the church. After the Mass they will return to Bachelor's Walk, and there disperse.

The usual Service will be held in St. Patrick's Cathedral on Sunday afternoon. At this Service a portion of the church will be specially reserved for ex-Service men.

On November 11 the same procedure will be followed as last year. The various contingents will form up in the Memorial Park at Islandbridge, where a two-minutes' silence will be observed. Poppies will, of course, be on sale as usual on November 11.

DUBLIN FIRE VICTIM'S DEATH

Badly burned in the fire at the City Pharmacy, 61 Upper O'Connell street, Dublin, about ten days ago, Miss Eileen Grant (20), of 270 Clontarf road, Dublin, died in Jervis Street Hospital yesterday. Mr. Anthony Blake, a photographer, whose offices were in the building, and Mrs. Annie Swan, a sister of Miss Grant, who were also injured, are doing well, it was stated yesterday.

SAVING THE CALVES

At Cork United Cattle Traders' Association, Mr. J. Murphy, Chairman, presiding, it was decided to ask the shipping company to give a quota to all exporters who had been regularly engaged in shipment of stores.

The Vice-Chairman again emphasised the necessity of taking immediate steps to preserve the cattle population by curtailing indiscriminate slaughter of calves and young cattle for the veal and pressed beef trade. Another matter demanding urgent attention was the question of return cargoes on ships taking away the live-stock. It was time the Government insisted on the principles of barter bargaining.

After an all-day sitting in London yesterday the Central Agricultural Wages Board decided to recommend that the national minimum wage for farm workers should be increased by 8s. to 56s. weekly. Over 500,000 farm workers are affected.

SHIPPING OF LIVE STOCK

FAT CATTLE FIRST, THEN STORES

THE difficulty of shipping live stock from Eire to ports in Great Britain, and the problem of the allocation of space, were discussed at a conference of the National Executive of the Irish Live Stock Exporters' and Traders' Association, Ltd., and the shipping companies.

A statement in regard to the conference was made by Mr. T. W. Molloy, vice-chairman, who presided at the meeting of the Association, held last night at Prosperity Chambers. Mr. Molloy said that the meeting between the Association and the shipping companies was held on the suggestion of the Department of Agriculture.

Mr. A. J. Broughton, L.M.S., at the conference, stressed the difficulty of getting ships, and told the meeting that he had been with the Secretary of the Department of Agriculture, and had been asked to move all fat cattle, and an undertaking was given that ships would be provided.

Mr. Broughton, Mr. Molloy went on to say, stated that his company's first consideration was fat cattle.

A letter from the City Manager, read at last night's meeting, stated that it had been decided to continue the present arrangement for two cattle markets in Dublin weekly—Tuesdays and Fridays. The Minister for Agriculture, the letter pointed out, has had removed from November 2 the restrictions on the movement of live-stock into the County Borough of Dublin and the Borough of Dun Laoghaire.

TENSE SITUATION IN ATLANTIC AND PACIFIC

U.S. GOVERNMENT OPPOSES LONG RECESS

WASHINGTON, Wednesday.—Administration opposition to any extended Congressional recess was authoritatively disclosed to-night, and it stirred the immediate conjecture that the tense situation in the Atlantic and Pacific was responsible for the Administration's attitude. Members of the House of Representatives have talked of a lengthy recess after the passage of the Neutrality Revision Bill (which is expected to pass the Senate to-morrow or Friday) and enactment of the Price Control Bill.

It was learned, however, that only three-day holidays would be permitted, regardless of the lack of legislative business.

Meanwhile in the Senate the debate on Neutrality Revision dragged into its final hours, with the familiar arguments being presented in various manners.

NEW YORK, Wednesday.—President Roosevelt is addressing the International Labour Office Conference to-morrow, when it visits Washington for one session. His speech, which is scheduled to begin at 9 p.m. (B.S.T.), and last twenty minutes, will be broadcast.—(Reuter.)

CIVIL DEFENCE IN THE NORTH

MORE MONEY VOTED

A supplementary vote of £2,000,000 for civil defence services was agreed to in the Northern Ireland House of Commons yesterday. A sum of £2,300,000 has already been voted.

Mr. Maginess said more than half of the two millions would go to the cost of air raid shelters and a substantial sum to demolition and clearance of debris in Belfast after the two serious air raids in April and May.

The House also passed a supplementary estimate of £57,000 and £495 for agricultural services.

Mr. Maginess, Parliamentary Secretary, mentioned that the Six Counties now had five times as many tractors and tractor ploughs as before the war, and under their hire-purchase scheme, 772 tractors and 1,100 ploughs had been purchased.

Another supplementary vote passed was £175,125, which includes work on Belfast harbour, towards which the Government is to pay 80 per cent. and the Harbour Board 15 per cent.

During a debate, in which some members said they were not given full details,

Mr. Nixon said that anyone from observation or conversation with others, could get all possible information and pass it to the German Embassy in Dublin. The Minister, replying, said he would tell any member privately.

RECENT TRANSPORT STRIKE

Mr. P. T. Daly, Secretary of the Dublin Trades' Union Council, writes stating that while individual members, in their personal capacity, advised the men involved in the recent Dublin transport strike to return to work, they did not do so as representatives of the Executive of the Trades Council.

GERMAN NEWS IN THE NORTH

Patrick John McGrath, school teacher, Limetree House, Pomeroy, Co. Tyrone, was accused at Newry Petty Sessions yesterday under the Control of Communications Order with bringing into Northern Ireland from Eire a typescript of the weekly review of the German News Agency dated August 15. The proceedings were adjourned for a week, as McGrath was unable to attend.

AIR ACTIVITY IN MIDDLE EAST

RAIDS ON SOUTHERN SICILY

BOMBING of Libyan aerodromes, attacks on submarine bases and other objectives in Sicily, and the torpedoing of three supply ships in the Central Mediterranean were announced in yesterday's news from the Middle East.

"The South African Air Force attacked the assembly sheds and aerodrome buildings at Berka aerodrome yesterday, said Wednesday's Royal Air Force Middle East communiqué. "Fires broke out, and large columns of black smoke rose into the air after bombs had fallen on the aerodrome and the aerodrome buildings and in the vicinity of the assembly sheds. Further fires were started in a stores dump.

"Our aircraft engaged enemy fighters over the aerodromes. One CR 42 was shot down in flames, and another CR 42 was seen falling out of control.

"Other bombers of the South African Air Force raided objectives at Benghazi in daylight on November 3. Heavy clouds obscured the targets, and results of the bombing could not be observed.

"The submarine base at Augusta in Sicily was raided by Naval aircraft during the night of November 3-4, fires being started in the military barracks.

"Our fighters were active over Southern Sicily yesterday. A train near Noto, signal boxes between Noto and Passero, and a factory west of Pozallo were all machine-gunned. One Cant 2506 in Syracuse harbour was badly damaged. Other objectives for our aircraft included motor transport on a road, a camp near Cape Passero, and a bridge near Gela.

"From these and other operations all our aircraft returned safely."

THREE SUPPLY SHIPS TORPEDOED

"Three more enemy supply ships have been torpedoed by British submarines in the Central Mediterranean," stated an Admiralty communiqué yesterday. Two were of about 4,000 tons and the other was of about 1,500 tons. Two of these ships were in convoys escorted by warships."

RAIDS ON NORTHERN FRANCE

"Aircraft of the Fighter Command kept up a running offensive against ground targets in Northern France yesterday, stated an Air Ministry News Service. Most of the operations were carried out at low level, often in face of intense fire from ground defences.

"In one operation three goods trains were attacked. The boilers split open and the wagons were left smoking. In another an ammunition dump was destroyed, and army lorries were shot up. In a third operation barges on the Ostend-Bruges Canal and lock-houses were fired on."

U.S.-CANADA JOINT DEFENCE MOVE

WASHINGTON, Wednesday.—It is announced from the White House that President Roosevelt and Mr. Mackenzie King, the Canadian Prime Minister, have created a twelve-member Joint Defence Production Committee to co-ordinate the capacities of the United States and Canada for the production of defence materials.

Mr. Milo Perkins, Executive Director of the United States Economic Defence Board, has been appointed Chairman of the American group of the new Committee.

The Canadian group of members is headed by Mr. G. K. Sheils, Deputy Minister of the Department of Munitions Supply.

The resolution establishing the joint defence said that Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. King agreed at Hyde Park on April 20, as a general principle, in mobilising the resources of the continent, each country should provide the other with defence articles which it was best able to produce, and that production programmes should be speeded up and co-ordinated to this end.—(Reuter.)

CONSERVATORS OF FISHERIES

RESIGNATION OF DR. R. R. LEEPER

At a meeting of the Dublin Conservators of Fisheries, yesterday, under the chairmanship of Mr. H. D. Pack Beresford, the resignation from the chairmanship and membership of the Board of Dr. R. R. Leeper was accepted. The Chairman said that Dr. Leeper's wise counsel would be a loss to them, and a loss to fishermen in general, especially to net fishermen, whose interests he had always had at heart. The Clerk, Mr. Newcombe, was asked to send a message to Dr. Leeper to say how sorry they all were that he felt compelled to resign.

The Water Bailiff's report said that the season was fairly satisfactory, with a plentiful supply of fine sporting fish, and almost ideal weather conditions. Brown trout anglers had a good season, and now that the Liffey dam at Poulaphouca was completed, the large lake created there should soon become prominent as a trout-fishing centre.

DIPLOMATIST FOR LISBON

MR. C. O'DONOVAN APPOINTED

THE Irish Government have decided to have a diplomatic representative at Lisbon. This was disclosed in the following official communication last night:—

"Following an agreement with the Portuguese Government, it has been decided to appoint a Chargé d'Affaires to look after Irish interests in Lisbon.

"The post will be filled by Mr. Colm O'Donovan, who was until recently Chargé d'Affaires at the Holy See. He will take up his duties early in December."

Mr. O'Donovan, who is a brother of Mr. D. J. O'Donovan, recently appointed Commissioner for Co. Dublin, has been connected with the Eire Legation at the Vatican—first as Secretary and later in the absence of the late Minister, Mr. W. J. B. Macaulay, as Chargé d'Affaires.

It may be recalled that, in the Irish Times of 23rd October, the desirability of an Irish Legation at Lisbon was suggested owing to the importance of that city as "the hub of the Western universe" at the present time.

Hitherto the Irish Government has not had any representative, Consular or otherwise, at Lisbon. Mr. Kevin J. Kenny is honorary consul at Dublin for Portugal.

INTELLECTUALS IN WORLD ORDER

VIEWS OF PAST AND FUTURE

AT the opening meeting of the College Historical Society's session in Trinity College last night, the Auditor, Mr. A. Lieven, Sch., in his inaugural address, spoke on "Intellectuals at Bay." Mr. Justice FitzGibbon, K.C., presided.

There was no doubt, said the Auditor, that the word "intellectual" had become more of a term of abuse and contempt than anything else with the average man. But any man was an intellectual who did not pursue a mere nose-to-the-ground policy. How tragically obvious it was that our thinking community had, in the majority, lost interest in anything except the purely immediate. It had abandoned the search for a general good. Only the narrowest individual achievement counted. The ever-growing power of man over nature had brought about the rule of the uncultured man. He had invaded every field of knowledge. The servants of knowledge, the intellectals, had given way before the onslaught.

Mr. Cyril Connolly, proposing a vote of thanks, said that the prejudice against intellectuals was very strong in England. Irish people were fortunate that they were living in a nation which had a longer tradition of civilisation than any country whose latitude was so far north of Rome. He could not help feeling that Ireland might start a new movement in which intellectuals might have a higher place in government. The new society which would arise after the war in England might be one in which the terms "high brow" and "low brow" would disappear, because the intellectuals would merge with the population. It might be that in that way English intellectuals would go forward.

In Ireland their road was different. They had here a small new country which might represent in the modern world the part of the Greek State cities. Ireland was one of the last European countries where the lights had not gone out. Irish people must use the lights; they must burn the midnight oil and give an example of a united democratic country.

THE CRITICAL NOTE

Dr. Erwin Schrödinger, seconding the motion, said that he did not believe in the possibility, or probability, of efficient co-operation by intellectuals in improving the world's natural course. He had not confidence in such co-operation—firstly, because intellectuals were not likely to strain themselves very much, simply because they had not power to impose their will on the world's course. There seemed to be a sort of absolute incompatibility between the sphere of action and the contemplative sphere. The major cause for his lack of confidence was that he did not consider it a right view to split the phenomena of history into two parts—the natural course of development on one side, and on the other side, man's conscious and determined influence in directing events.

Man was just as much a part of nature as anything else. The idea of history being the statistical composition of the masses, rather than of individuals, seemed to be contradicted by instances of the overwhelming influence of single persons. He thought, however, that such people were rather products of history than producers of it.

Mr. Stephen Spender moved that the society was worthy of support, and said that intellectuals all over Europe who had attempted to act had seen everything they stood for threatened by tyranny.

Mr. Jim Prendergast, seconding the motion, declared his adhesion to Marxism and to Russian Soviet principles and action. He mentioned the war of the U.S.S.R. against Finland and said that people who had permitted themselves to be deceived of that action were now expressing astonishment at the wonderful resistance that Russia to-day had put up against Germany's military power. Even Mr. Smyllie had expressed himself as extremely baffled at the might of that magnificent opposition. That was because Mr. Smyllie, like most liberal and honest intellectuals, had refused to accept the facts.

The motion was adopted.

"Crimea Still in Grave Danger," says Soviet

Fierce Fighting West and South of Moscow

FIVE panzer armies were stated last night to be hammering at the key sectors of Moscow's defences, as 600 miles to the south General Von Rundstedt sent tanks, planes and shock troops against the Crimea in his bid to strike at the Soviet Black Sea Fleet and remove the threat to the right flank of a German drive towards the Caucasus.

Fighting is raging fiercest in the forest lands stretched before Moscow at Mozhaisk, west of the capital, and Tula, 110 miles south, but the Germans do not appear to have made any headway against the strong Soviet positions, says the Press Association.

Both commands are employing large concentrations of tanks and artillery, and Russian resistance, reinforced by the fresh troops hastened westwards as the first mass offensive against Moscow gained momentum, is stated to be inflicting severe losses everywhere.

Germans Claim to be on Black Sea

Soviet reports indicate that the heaviest battles are being waged in the Crimea, where the Red Army troops—their defences now resting on the northern slopes of the Yaila Mountains, covering Sebastopol and Kerch—are grimly resisting the drive to the southern shore.

The German High Command has already claimed to have achieved such a penetration to the waters of the Black Sea. Their communiqué yesterday asserted that the Yaila Mountains had been negotiated at one point, despite the difficulties of the terrain, and that pursuit of the Russian forces continued in a southerly and easterly direction.

Latest front-line despatches to Moscow admit that the position is still grave, but declare that the defenders of the Crimea are consolidating their defences on the new line to which they have retreated and "are organising a rebuff to the overwhelming Fascists."

FIGHTING NEAR CAPITAL

The Russians are firmly holding their ground, and fighting is going on in the area of Simferopol, the capital, says a Red Star correspondent. Within the past 24 hours, he adds, the rate of the German advance has somewhat decreased, and stiffening Soviet resistance—on one sector persistent attacks have failed to pierce the defences—has checked the onslaught.

A message from Xuibyshev quotes statement by M. Lozovsky, the Soviet spokesman, yesterday, refuting the German claim to have captured "almost the whole of the Crimea." As he spoke reports reaching the temporary Russian capital said that the Germans, throwing in a new tank division to add to pressure under which the defenders had already been forced back, had lost 50,000 men in twelve days' fighting alone.

Of the German drive eastwards towards Kerch, London authoritative quarters commented yesterday that it was not clear whether the German aim, in seeking to dominate this narrow strait, is to attempt a crossing on to the Caucasian mainland or merely to handicap any evacuation attempt.

If the German claims so far are substantiated the Russians might have some difficulty in retaining Sebastopol as the main base for the Black Sea Fleet. But, even forced back on Hovorossisk the Soviet warships would offer strong opposition to a sea-borne invasion of the Caucasus.

A fierce trial of strength is developing on the approaches to Moscow. Fresh German forces have been concentrated for a new assault, says Victorov, a well-known Soviet writer, in an article broadcast by the Russian radio last night. The Red Army, he says, will fight to the last drop of its blood. For the past seventy-two hours the Germans have sought in vain to drive forward, and are making heavy calls on reserves.

LENINGRAD LIVELINESS

"The enemy has become active on the Leningrad front," Moscow radio stated early to-day. "The Germans penetrated Soviet defences in a few places, but the advance of the main German forces have been checked. Soviet troops are counter-attacking."—(Reuter.)

THE FIVE SECTORS

Latest news from the five chief sectors:—

KALININ (North-West) — Soviet offensive blows continue. In one day's fighting, says the latest communiqué, 15 German tanks, 10 armoured cars, 13 guns and other equipment were destroyed and 600 officers and men killed.

VOLOKALAMSK (West-North-West)—Commander Rokossovsky counter-attacked on the German left flank, and a cavalry group drove a wedge into the German lines.

MOZHAISK (West)—Some of the sharpest attacks along the whole front have been delivered by General von Hoeppner, striking at the grimly-held Soviet defences. Here and in the Volokiansk and Maloyaroslavets sectors German losses between October 12 and 20 are said to be not less than 70,000 killed and wounded, about 300 tanks and 200 'planes, together with many guns.

MALOYAROSLAVETS (South-West)—Fierce attempts to force the River Nara have been repulsed, and the Germans, covered by artillery and machine-gun fire, are reported to have dug themselves in, using half-buried tanks as forts.

TULA (South)—Terrific battles are still raging in ruined suburbs of this small-arms factory town, and German concentrations to the north-west are believed to indicate preparation for a new attempt to smash into the defences since the drive along the Orel highway had been checked.

On the Northern (Leningrad) front the German High Command admits renewed Red Army efforts to cross the Neva.

Limerick Programme

Last Minute Fancied For Garryowen 'Chase

SAVE in one instance, fields will be of good size at Limerick to-day, and the sport promises to be up to a good standard. The exception is the principal event, the Garryowen Handicap Steeplechase, for which only half a dozen have been declared, and two of these, Sterling Duke and Kilcash Prince, are trained by C. Rogers. Kilcash Prince won at Powerstown Park recently, and that form was enhanced when Waving Star, who was unplaced then, won at the Junction last week. Second to Kilcash Prince at the Clonmel trial was Last Minute, who, with no less a pull than 15lb. for a half length beating, should turn the tables, and, most likely, win.

Tote Double on Fourth and Fifth Race.

The Greenfield Handicap looks an open affair. Perhaps Belrose, who ran well at Dundalk last week, will score. Selections:—

City Hurdle—Ruby Loch.
Greenpark Handicap—Belrose.
Garryowen 'Chase—Last Minute.

PAPYRUS DEAD

Papyrus, who won the Derby in 1923 for Mr. Ben Irish, was found dead in his box at the Aislabie Stud, Newmarket, yesterday. He will be remembered chiefly by his voyage to America to meet (and in a match at Belmont Park, on Long Island, for £20,000 and a cup. The distance was a mile and a half, the same as the Derby. Zev won easily, the handicap being all set by English horse, who had been shy in the country only a fortnight after a stormy voyage, during which he refused food for three days. In addition, he was racing on a dirt track for the first time, and he was shod with smooth plates, which gave him no hold on the greasy surface.

Basil Jarvis, who used to train Papyrus, said: "The old horse's end was not expected, as he had eaten up at his last meal, and there did not appear to be anything wrong with him. He just quietly passed away."

"I was sorry to hear of the death of Papyrus," said Steve Donoghue. "He gave me a great ride when I won the Derby on him."

Leinster Should Beat Ulster

(By P. B. McWEENEY.)

WEAKENED by the withdrawal of T. Foran the Unity welter-weight, and Sergt. M. Dwan, the cruiser-weight champion, Leinster may have plenty to do to beat Ulster in the inter-provincial meeting at the Stadium to-morrow night.

On his recent form against J. Ingle, with whom he was on level terms until a cut eyebrow in the third round caused the bout to be stopped, Foran probably would have beaten F. Bathgate. As the latter is also unable to appear, an additional middle-weight contest has been substituted between C. Forde, of St. Andrews, and Constable Gallacher. I doubt if Forde's clever defence will be proof against Gallacher's unceasing attack.

The reserve for Dwan is Cpl. Kelleher, of Baldoonel, who is a hard hitter with tons of pluck, but he is making his first appearance this season, and is likely to find the experienced H. W. Kelly too smart for him.

Several of the visiting side are unknown here, and one cannot expect A. Cooper or G. Smith to have much chance against W. Lenihan or A. Delahunt. J. Foley is strong for a fly-weight, and I fancy him to beat H. R. Hall, but Fisher was so impressive recently against E. Chandler that Cpl. Dowdall will have plenty on his hands. G. Kilcullen is improving every time out, but he is meeting an awkward customer in the southpaw W. Smith, and he will need to be at his best to win.

J. Lennox, the Munster champion, who is now resident in Belfast, seems to have the mastery of Cpl. Black. He is an extremely clever boxer, but lacks a damaging punch. J. Blackborow, a Welsh schools' champion, recently knocked out the Ulster choice at middle-weight, J. Engle-field, and has therefore, been put on instead. He will need to be a very hard and accurate hitter to get the better of Sgt. Ryan.

A considerably improved man is our heavy-weight, J. Montgomery, who is learning footwork without sacrificing hitting power. He will not find the going easy against Constable Malra, but should add another point to Leinster's total. I reckon that Leinster ought to win by six bouts to four, but every contest on an excellent programme should be of interest. The programme is as follows:—

Fly-weight—J. Foley v. H. R. Hall.
Bantam—W. Lenihan v. A. Cooper.
Feather—A. Delahunt v. G. Smith.
Light—Corporal P. Dowdall v. F. H. Fisher; G. Kilcullen v. W. Smith.
Welter—Corporal V. Black v. J. Lennox.
Middle—Sergeant R. Ryan v. J. H. Blackborow; C. Forde v. Constable W. Gallacher.
Cruiser—Corporal J. Kelleher v. H. W. Kelly.
Heavy—Garda J. J. Montgomery v. Constable Malra.

Pacific Perils

While the Germans are hammering at the doors of Moscow, and General von Rundstedt's legions are reported to have isolated the Crimea, a diplomatic diversion has been caused in the Far East. For some time past it has been evident that relations between Japan and the United States—never particularly good—were becoming steadily worse. The Government of the United States is wholeheartedly on the side of Great Britain and her allies in the present struggle; the Government of Japan is equally enthusiastic in its support of the "Axis." Japan, it must be remembered, is one of the signatories of the famous Tripartite Pact, which was directed, in the first instance, against Soviet Russia. Her statesmen, to do them justice, never have made any secret of their sympathies with the totalitarian Powers; and, as the Americans have been hardening in their support of Great Britain and Russia, the Japanese have been displaying a corresponding movement in the opposite direction. There are many bones of contention between Japan and the United States in the Pacific. They have existed for a number of years; but, by mutual consent, the two principal Pacific Powers have ignored them studiously and have preserved the polite fiction of good neighbourly relations. Now that the Government of the United States has been identifying herself more and more closely with the cause of Great Britain and her Allies in their fight against National-Socialist Germany and Fascist Italy, Japan has been coming into the open with a substantial list of grievances against the Anglo-Saxon Powers. It is the old story of Lebensraum. In spite of her territorial gains at China's expense, Japan takes the view that her growing population needs more elbow-room, and complains that Great Britain and the United States are standing athwart her path. Some weeks ago Prince Konoye, the Japanese Premier, who was believed to be in favour of a policy of "appeasement" vis-à-vis the United States, and, incidentally, Great Britain, resigned in favour of General Tojo, a member of the Japanese military caste, who is reputed to be an advocate of "forward" action—in other words, of war. No sane Japanese would wish to involve his country in a conflict with the United States if conditions were normal; but they are anything but normal, and the possibility that America may become involved in the war between Germany and Great Britain has encouraged certain elements in Japan to press for a more aggressive policy in the Pacific on the ground that the opportunity of important gains for Japan never may recur. It seems that these elements have a staunch representative in General Tojo, who not alone is a fervent believer in the totalitarian philosophy of government, but also believes in the invincibility of the "Axis" group of Powers. In so far as one can speak of public opinion in Japan, which is a complete autocracy, General Tojo's policy seems to be popular. Most of the Japanese people believe that their country is being denied her rightful place in the Eastern sun by Great Britain and the United States, and, apparently, are quite prepared to draw the logical conclusions.

There has been no overt act on either side to justify a crisis. The American Government has been at some pains recently to avoid any possible injury to Japanese susceptibilities; and, while American spokesmen have been almost brutally frank in their public references to Germany and Italy, they have kept significantly clear of statements that might give offence in Tokyo. Nevertheless, those who have been keeping a close eye on American-Japanese relations have noticed an accelerating deterioration during the last few weeks. Statesmen on both sides of the Pacific have declared openly that at times matters have been strained almost to the point of war. It seems that Japan's grievances, which formerly were general and vague, now are being formulated in a particular and precise way, and very little would be necessary to translate them into diplomatic demands. Yesterday, it was announced that Mr. Saburu Kurusu, a prominent supporter of the Japanese Government, was about to fly from Tokyo to Washington as the personal envoy of General Tojo and the Japanese Foreign Minister. He is believed to be carrying what are described as "final advices" to Admiral Nomura, the Japanese Ambassador to the United States. He also probably will see Mr. Cordell Hull, if not, indeed, President Roosevelt himself. It was stated in Tokyo last evening that General Tojo is anxious that the situation as between Japan and the United States, with particular reference to the Pacific, should be "clarified." Japan, apparently, has no desire to quarrel with the Americans, but she insists that her rights in the Far East shall be recognised by everybody concerned—including, presumably, Great Britain; and Mr. Saburu Kurusu's mission to Washington is intended to make this fact clear. Japan is a naval and military Power of formidable strength, although her resources must have been depleted seriously in China during recent years. Nobody seems to know the strength of her Air Force; but there is no doubt that, if she should decide to go to war, she would be able to give a good account of herself. At the moment, there is no legitimate casus belli; but in times such as those through which we are living at present such punctilios are of small account. Doubtless, Mr. Saburu Kurusu will try to obtain concessions in Washington, relying on the declared reluctance of the United States to become involved in naval or military commitments in the Pacific. It is even possible that he will succeed, at least to a limited extent, because the Americans at the moment have their eyes fixed firmly on the Atlantic, and will do everything in their power to avoid a war in two oceans. So far as the rest of the world is concerned, the danger of an extension of the war to include Japan and the United States is a fearsome thing. We find it almost impossible to believe that such a calamity is possible; but we are living in a mad world.

Fire Watching

The block of buildings that includes the offices of this newspaper is familiar to everybody in Dublin. For that reason, no doubt, it has been chosen as the subject of an exceedingly important experiment, which will be discussed at a meeting in the Mansion House this afternoon. There has been much talk in Dublin about the necessity for a city-wide scheme of fire-watching, and useful work has been done. Yet only the fringe of the problem has been touched. The reason is, partly, the reluctance of our people to take any practical measures in their own defence until the moment of crisis is actually upon them—when it will be too late—but partly, as we think, because they do not know how to set about the task. The A.R.P. authorities—under whom we include not merely the official A.R.P. organisation, but also the Department of Defence and the Fire Services, both "professional" and auxiliary — have decided to show them the way. They propose to create a scheme of fire-watching for this block, to organise it thoroughly, to train personnel, to explain the scheme fully through the Press to the people at large, and then to bid them go and do likewise. It seems to us an admirable idea. It will be studied by everybody, for the good and simple reason that it must be studied by everybody. An Order is being drafted to make fire-watching compulsory in the event of an emergency; but all the compulsion in the world will not provide an efficient system unless the people know precisely what they are to do. The whole city will be divided into "units," somewhat on the lines of this specimen block, and every unit will be taught how to defend itself against fire. Finally, the whole complex of units will be co-ordinated, with the help of the Corporation and its Fire Department. We hope that every advantage will be taken of this, apparently, most intelligent plan. As Mr. P. J. Hernon has said, great progress has been made, thanks mainly to the work of the Chamber of Commerce, businessmen's associations, individual firms, and, in the suburban areas, of the Warden Service. Nevertheless, there must be thousands of buildings in Dublin to which the activities of these pioneers have not extended—buildings which would be defenceless against fire if a severe raid should take place. Until every building is protected, the city is not safe, since one fire breeds others at an alarming rate. It will be no easy task to create an efficient system: the experience of other cities shows that there are innumerable complications. Many of them, however, can be resolved if the work is taken in hand at leisure rather than left to the last moment; and we hope that even before the Government's Order makes fire-watching compulsory, there will be a strong muster of volunteers who will be able to pass on the benefits of their training to the later arrivals.

Horse Sense

Formerly the phrase "I could eat a horse" was used only in a jocular sense, and the person who used it would not for one moment entertain the idea of settling down to a joint of horseflesh. In these hard times it is a different tale, and the jocular expression of other days has become bitter fact. Nowadays when a person uses the expression there is every chance that he will be taken at his word; for we read that in Great Britain the people are beginning to realise that horseflesh is suitable for human consumption, and it is appearing on the menus in small, but increasing, quantities. To the average Englishman the idea of eating a horse—or even a small part of a horse—is repellant because, apart altogether from the alleged toughness of the meat, such an action would not be considered "sporting." Horse-racing and fox-hunting have earned for the horse a place of pride among the domesticated animals, and to eat the flesh of man's most faithful servant is considered to be a mild form of cannibalism. Nevertheless, necessity can overcome such obstacles. On the Continent horseflesh always has been used as a human food on a large scale, and even the most perfect English gentleman while abroad partakes of horseflesh, and enjoys it, under the erroneous impression that it is some less-known variety of beef or venison. There is nothing unhealthy about horseflesh as a human food—as a matter of fact, the horse is the only animal completely immune from tuberculosis—and the fact that the people of a country are willing to eat horseflesh does not mean that the cupboard is altogether bare. The British people, at any rate, can consider themselves lucky that they are allowed to eat their horses; in Hungary, according to a recent report, the Government has ordained that the people should save all their surplus bacon-rind so that it can be turned into a leather substitute to be used in the manufacture of boot-soles. In this way the Hungarians will be able to use their shoes as an "iron ration" without any fears about their edibility. These are hard times for the luxury-loving classes. Shortly after the beginning of the war caviare was rationed, and they had to descend to a joint of common roast beef for dinner. Now that roast beef is becoming scarce they may have to descend to horseflesh, and Peer Gynt's generalisation "Great men are known by the steeds they ride" will have to be changed to "Great men are known by the steeds they eat."

HELPING CHILDREN'S FOLD

The Archbishop of Dublin, the Most Rev. Dr. Barton, declaring open yesterday the gift day and sale of work in aid of the Children's Fold and Asaleagh Orphanage, in the Mission Buildings, Townsend street, Dublin, said that the best thing children could be given was a sound Christian education in a Christian atmosphere. He hoped that the sale would be a greater success than ever; for expenses were greater this year than they had ever been in Ireland before.

The Rev. R. E. Weir, rector of Irishtown, proposing a vote of thanks to the Archbishop, made a reference to the Irish Times correspondence in connection with the Church of Ireland, as a result of which, he said, a despondent view of the Church of Ireland might be taken. As a branch of the Church's work, these children's homes were doing excellent work, and, if all the readers of the Irish Times who spent 2½d. on postage to swell the present correspondence, would contribute that amount to a cause such as that they were working for there would be no cause for complaint.

Canon Griffin seconded the vote of thanks, which was passed.

The principal stallholders are as follows:—Refreshments—Miss Wilson. White Elephant—Miss J. Mellett. Variety—Miss Jackson. Country Produce—Miss Scott. Home—Miss Farley. Work—Mrs. Harvey. DUBLIN FRENCH SOCIETY

At yesterday's meeting of the Dublin French Society in No. 16 St. Stephen's Green, Miss Ruth Dromgoole gave an address entitled "Watteau and his Work." M. Cauvet Duhamel was in the chair.

Watteau, said Miss Dromgoole, represented the spirit of the eighteenth century; in his work could be seen a picture of the brilliant society which was to die with the Revolution. Though Flemish by birth, he was French in his mind and in his way of looking at life. He could be called the author of the style of painting known as rococo, a style which he had developed from the baroque and opposed to the classical style of Poussin. His greatest picture, "L'Enseigne de Gersaint," executed in eight days, was something new in French painting, giving a realistic view of ordinary, everyday Parisian life which was not seen again until Manet and his famous picture, "Folies Bergères."

LONDON LETTER

50 FLEET STREET, LONDON,
WEDNESDAY NIGHT.

THE mystery of the death at Tobruk in June last year of Air-Marshal Italo Balbo, who was well known in Ireland for his Air Armada, was cleared up to-day, when Air-Commodore Collinshaw, who commanded the R.A.F. units at the time in the Western Desert, revealed that he was shot down by Italian "Ack Ack." The Air-Marshal had flown a bomber, escorted by two fighters, to the desert to rescue stranded and dying troops, and, after delivering them to hospital, his arrival coincided with an attack by the R.A.F. who were bombing from 20,000 feet. When Balbo flew in at 2,000 he came over an Italian cruiser going towards the harbour, which opened fire on the R.A.F. 'planes, and struck the Marshal's 'plane a direct hit. The cracking up of the brave Italian's 'plane was recorded by R.A.F. photographers, who happened to have their lenses on the 'plane at the very moment it was struck.

Protecting Cinema-goers

Declaring that he had to leave more than an hour before the advertised closing time, having seen only part of one picture, a London picture-goer complained to-day to the L.C.C. Public Control Committee, and opposed an application for the renewal for 1942 of the music and cinematograph licences of a West End cinema. The Committee renewed the licence, but warned the manager that they were not satisfied that the cinema took all steps to give the widest publicity to the change in opening hours. Last year the licences of two cinemas were suspended for two weeks, as a result of which they sustained great financial loss. In both cases cinema-goers complained that they were told dearer seats only were vacant at a time when there were vacancies in lower-priced seats. This is, of course, an old trick, which still is occasionally practised.

Canal Traffic

Suggestions often appear that further war-time use should be made of Britain's canal system, which is experiencing a substantial revival, although the labour problem is still acute. There has been no dividend since 1936 on the 6 per cent. Preference shares of the Grand Union Canal, but the Ordinary stock, which was £6 last year, was recently dealt in at £15. Thirty years ago there were 4,760 miles of waterways in use in Britain; to-day there are only 2,475 miles of navigable waterways, which carry an average of about fourteen million tons of goods a year. The largest lock in England is one 600 feet by 80 feet on the Manchester Ship Canal, of which Mr. Matthew Kissane, of a well-known North Kerry family, has been secretary for many years.

Won Derby With One Eye

Steve Donoghue reminded me to-day of his great Derby win in 1923 on Papyrus, whose passing recalls one of the most romantic and exciting chapters of the Turf. His owner, a small farmer in the English Midlands, won the Blue Riband at his first attempt, and enabled Steve to complete his hat-trick of Epsom Derby victories. To ride Papyrus Steve preferred to lose his retainer from Lord Woolavington rather than ride Knockando. In the first race a clod of hard earth was flung up by the horses in front, and it hit Steve in the left eye, which hurt intensely. On his arrival in the unsaddling enclosure the eye was completely closed and throbbing painfully, but Steve refused to let the doctor lance it, although it was his "rails eye," and he went round Tattenham corner without the use of it. Two furlongs from home Steve, with his hands and his knees, asked Papyrus to quicken the gruelling stride to pass Pharos, then half a length in front, and win by a length. As he approached the enclosure, his one open eye wet with excitement, the first person to come up to him was the owner of Pharos, Lord Derby, with his kind, beaming smile, as he shook Steve's hand warmly and remarked: "Stephen, if they had kept you in that ambulance room another half an hour I'd have won the Derby."

La Guardia's Success

Judge William O'Dwyer did extremely well to total only 133,841 votes less than Fiorella La Guardia's 1,186,394 in yesterday's New York mayoral election. The Irishman to-day said that it was a battle from the very beginning in the true American spirit and tradition, and he telegraphed Fiorella that he wholeheartedly accepts the people's verdict. La Guardia is the first man to be chosen for a third term since 1776, and he will again be the first of New York's 7,400,000 citizens for the four-year term beginning in January. The first results favoured the Mayo man so much that for a time the Italian's supporters were worried. Before midnight, however, it was clear that re-election was certain, for Fiorella was winning Manhattan, Brooklyn, and the Bronx, while O'Dwyer was top in Queen's and Richmond. But the fact that in eight years La Guardia has given New York, once the most corrupt local administration in America, an honest administration, told, as did the fact that he conducts his campaigns vociferously in English, Yiddish and Italian.

BRONCHIAL ASTHMA

HOPE ALMOST ABANDONED WHEN DÔ-DÔ GAVE "AMAZING RELIEF"

Time and again letters from former Asthma victims state that hope of relief had been abandoned when at last Do-Do was tried. Here is what Mr. E. P., of West Bromwich, wrote on February 25th, 1941:

"For some years now I have been a great sufferer from Bronchial Asthma, and have spent pounds on all kinds of medicines, until I began to give up hope of ever getting any relief.

"A few weeks ago a friend advised me to give your Do-Do Tablets a trial. Needless to say, I have very little faith, as I had tried so many remedies, but I was amazed at the relief I obtained after the second dose. I have had two tins and I feel a different man altogether. I have only one regret, and that is I didn't know of them years ago. I shall always recommend them."

Are you on the point of giving up in despair, or anyone you know? If so, give Do-Do a trial without delay. Often the very first dose stops that awful choking feeling, conquers the cough and banishes the ever-present dread of Asthma attack.

Relief from choking spasm in 30 seconds; easy breathing restored in 15 to 30 minutes—that is the promise Do-Do invariably fulfils. Do-Do succeeds where other means fail because Do-Do Tablets contain soothing and healing medicaments found in no other remedy—at any price.

FOUR DEAD IN BELFAST FIRE

INQUEST ADJOURNED

An inquest was opened and adjourned in Belfast yesterday on the bodies of James Coulter (38), his wife and two children, aged 8 years and 21 months, respectively, who perished when their home on the Crumlin road was destroyed by fire on October 29.

Witnesses said that the house was a raging furnace soon after the outbreak occurred. They could hear Mrs. Coulter shout "Jimmy, the house is on fire. Come this way," and Coulter reply, hoarsely, "What way?" Attempts at rescue failed.

An officer of the Fire Brigade said that a section arrived at the house four minutes after receiving the alarm.

The Coroner, adjourning the inquiry, said that he thought there was something wrong with the Brigade's system. He wanted to hear evidence on that point.

10 YEARS' PENAL SERVITUDE

SENTENCE IN MORAN CASE

A verdict of manslaughter was returned by the jury at the conclusion yesterday of the trial of James Moran, aged 35, farmer, Boncill, Foxford, Carrick-on-Shannon, on the charge of having murdered his aunt, Mrs. Winifred Kilbride, at Roscarbon, Carrick-on-Shannon, on April 19th last.

He was sentenced to ten years' penal servitude.

Thomas McCullagh, a workman who lived in the neighbourhood of the dead woman, said that when she lost her temper she "pegged" everything at her husband, the tongs and anything that lay to her hand.

James McGovern, a farmer, said that there were frequent squabbles between Mrs. Kilbride and her husband. He saw her once attack Moran, the accused man, with a rake.

THE SPEECHES

Mr. O. D. Gogarty, addressing the jury on behalf of Moran, said that they must remember that at the time of this assault Moran was drunk. The fight took place in a house in which there was no light, and Moran did not know exactly from what weapon he was defending himself. The deceased woman had been violent all her life. There was no evidence of malice upon which the jury could found a verdict of murder.

Mr. G. D. Murnaghan, addressing the jury for the prosecution, said that this old woman was seventy years of age. If the defence had thought that there was a case for self-defence they would have made it and left it at that. If he was so drunk that he did not know what happened surely he would have realised it the next morning. Not one word of regret had Moran expressed at the death of his aunt.

THE SUMMING-UP

Mr. Justice Hanna, in summing up, said that, obviously, on the evidence of what the old woman had said, Moran seemed to be a lazy, drinking fellow. There was no evidence that at any time the old woman commended her nephew for his hard work. The accused man, if his own story were true, had that night drank ten or twelve pints. He may or may not have had a good idea of what he was doing.

In passing sentence, Mr. Justice Hanna said Moran was guilty of a very brutal attack. The jury had taken a very merciful view. It was as near murder as a most anything could be, and he must impose a heavy sentence.

Mr. R. McLoughlin, K.C., with Mr. G. D. Murnaghan (instructed by the Chief State Solicitor), prosecuted. Mr. Vincent Rice, K.C., with Mr. O. D. Gogarty (instructed by Mr. F. G. Gannon), was for the defence.

THE NON-PAYMENT OF RATES

EFFECT OF RECENT CHANGES IN THE LAW

A member of a local authority will in future be prevented by law from acting as such if he has not paid his rates for any financial year at the end of that year. A candidate for the position of Lord Mayor, Mayor or Chairman of any local authority may in future vote at elections of these officers.

These changes were announced in a letter from the Department of Local Government, which was read at yesterday's meeting of the Dublin Board of Health. The letter stated that the changes were brought about by the Local Government Act, 1941 (No. 23 of 1941), which became law last month, and the Local Government Act, 1941 (Date of Commencement), which came into effect this month.

It was announced also that the carrying out of the Vaccination Act was now the duty of the Board of Assistance, the Dublin Corporation and the Dublin Board of Health.

During last week the Board relieved 9,698 cases at a cost of £4,133, an increase of 40 cases and £25 10s. over those of the previous week, and an increase of 538 cases and £350 over the corresponding week of last year.

10,000 TONS OF BOMBS ON GERMANY

The Bomber Command alone have dropped over 10,000 tons of bombs on Germany and German-occupied territories in the last three months, the Press Association Correspondent writes. Bombing in October was heavier than in September. The total, he states, has been achieved despite unfavourable weather.

They have had only four Septembers in the last 30 years in which there has been so much rain as this year, while part of October was much worse than a normal year, and extremely unfavourable to flying.

In May, June and July this year the total of bombs dropped was also 10,000 tons—so that the expansion of their Air Force and growing bombing capacity had been off-set by the weather. During November and December it was inevitable that the bomber efforts should fall.

Over 300 attacks on Axis shipping were carried out by Bomber, Fighter and Coastal Commands on an average of 10 a day.

"It can now be disclosed," he continues, "that German planes are carrying fenders or girders on their noses as a defence against our balloon barrage. Some of them have been captured and carefully examined. These fenders weigh 600lb. or 800lb., slow up the aircraft, and reduce the bomb and petrol loads which can be carried. They also make it almost impossible to fly on one engine, so that a twin-engine machine crippled in one motor must come down. It is calculated that the fenders reduce the machine's speed by, perhaps, roughly 19 miles an hour."

British machines, he added, are fitted with balloon cable cutters, by no means as cumbersome as the German fenders.

"LA TOSCA" AT GAIETY

The honours of last night's performance of "La Tosca," at the Gaiety Theatre, Dublin, by the Dublin Grand Opera Society, went to May Devitt, who gave an arresting reading of the heroine of Puccini's sombre tragedy. Although much more suited for such other Puccini parts as Mimi and "Butterfly," yet, by sheer artistry, she made La Tosca live and pulsating. Her acting was highly emotional and convincing and her singing admirable. The "Vissi d'arte" was very beautifully sung, and also her closing duet in the execution scene. John Torney was in splendid form as the painter, Cavaradossi. His voice came through with grand resonance and he was always standing well up to the work. John Lynskey gave quite a good study of Scarpia, the notorious chief of police. He was forceful both in singing and in acting, carrying that difficult second act admirably. But, like the other principals, he found it a severe handicap to make himself heard over the orchestra. Unfortunately, Mr. Charles Lynch, who conducted, found it impossible to keep his orchestra subdued—the brass especially was very much out of hand, and even in the big ensemble it was difficult to hear the singers. One lost completely the beauty of the choral work in the Te Deum at the close of the first act.

The smaller parts were well carried—a special word being well deserved by Stephen Black for his admirable cameo of the Sacristan, and Sam Mooney for his singing as the refugee, Angiolette.

To-night, "Cavalleria Rusticana" and "Pagliacci," at 7.30.

AN INFANT'S DEATH

A verdict of death from shock and toxæmia was recorded at an inquest in the Children's Hospital, Temple street, Dublin, yesterday, on Dolores Cahill, aged three, of 23 Liberty House, Dublin, who was scalded when a pot of tea fell on her after she had fallen into a wooden bath at her parents' flat.

IMPOSITION OF DUTIES ORDERS

CONFIRMATION BILL PASSED IN SENATE

In the Senate yesterday the Pier and Harbour Provisional Order (Confirmation) Bill passed all its stages without discussion.

Mr. SEAN GIBBONS (chairman) announced that the Examiner of Private Bills had reported that, in the case of the Architects (Registration) Bill, the Standing Orders relative to private business were applicable and had not been complied with. On his suggestion the examiner's report was referred to the Joint Committee on Standing Orders, and consideration of the second stage of the bill was deferred until the first meeting of the House after Christmas.

On the second stage of the Imposition of Duties (Confirmation of Orders) Bill, 1941, Mr. SEAN LEMASS (Minister for Supplies) said that all Orders imposing duties had to be confirmed within eight months by the Legislature. Some of the Orders in the bill had been in operation for nearly eight months, and the bill would have to be passed before the 14th or they would become invalid. Three of the Orders—Nos. 70, 155 and 214—were needed to give power to permit the importation, free of duty under licence, in respect of gas meters, mineral hydro-carbon heavy oil and articles in packages.

The other Orders arose as a result of the examination of the existing duties by the Tariff Commission, in accordance with the trade agreement made in 1938 between this country and Great Britain. The Orders implemented the recommendations of the Tariff Commission in respect of certain clocks and hollow-ware.

In the case of clocks, the recommendation was in favour of a preferential rate to the United Kingdom, and that of hollow ware of a reduction in the duty of from 40 to 30 per cent.

NATIONAL REGISTER

Senator DOUGLAS said that from what he knew of the trade in the articles concerned he approved of the Bill. The decision in the first three cases would help the Minister to secure needed supplies. The position as regards supplies was becoming more and more difficult. He took the opportunity of congratulating the Minister on his action in providing for the taking of a National Register. In doing so, the Minister had taken the advice of the minority in the Senate against the majority, and even if the advice had been accepted rather belatedly it was "better late than never."

Senator MICHAEL HAYES also congratulated the Minister on adopting the idea of a National Register.

Senator DESMOND FITZGERALD said that the Government were sometimes handicapped by inability to grant import licences immediately under certain Orders. He suggested that the whole body of Orders should be examined to see if, in the present circumstances, power to grant import licences should be granted immediately.

Senator SIR JOHN KEANE protested that the Government was quite able to take extra powers without any suggestions from the Senate.

Mr. LEMASS said that the Government had power to grant licences for the free importation of goods, subject to an import duty in most, but not all, circumstances. Circumstances had arisen during the war which were not forseen, and the Government were examining the position in relation to a number of duties, with a view to the suspension of some of them where it would seem that no useful purpose would be served by keeping them in operation.

Senator DOUGLAS said that in certain cases individuals had been offered certain goods, and had applied for importation licences, but during the days which elapsed before the licences arrived the goods had ceased to be available.

All stages of the bill were passed, and it was returned to the Dail.

The Senate adjourned sine die.

TEA MERCHANTS' ACTION

SETTLEMENTS IN THE MUSGRAVE CASE

(BEFORE MR. JUSTICE BLACK.)

A settlement was reached in the actions concerning the business of H. and E. Musgrave, Ltd., Anne street, Belfast, and H. and E. Musgrave (Dublin), Ltd., High street, Dublin, tea merchants, and the petition of the Belfast Company for the winding-up of the Dublin Company, in which it is a shareholder.

Mr. Overend, K.C., who, with Mr. Paul McCarthy, K.C., and Mr. Newett (instructed by Messrs. A. and L. Goodbody), appeared for the Belfast Company; Mr. Robert McDowell, commercial traveller, and director of both companies, University street, Belfast; Mr. J. A. Guiney, Anne street, Belfast, secretary of both companies; and Mr. W. A. McCulloch, executor of the late E. T. McCulloch, a former director of both companies, plaintiffs in the first action, announced that they had been able to reach an arrangement with the other parties which, he thought, would be satisfactory to all.

The Belfast Company always had recognised, he said, that many of the Preference shareholders in the Dublin Company had been influenced by the name of H. and E. Musgrave in taking Preference shares as a guarantee for the security of their shares. As the Court would have seen from the correspondence, the Belfast Company was anxious that the shareholders should not be disappointed, and was prepared to guarantee the dividend and capital of the Preference shareholders of the Dublin Company.

Mr. J. J. Henry, Church street, Swinford, director of the Dublin Company (plaintiff in the second action), had taken a number of shares in the company at the date of its incorporation, and incurred onerous liability in respect of them out of loyalty, and the Belfast Company was willing to pay him a sum which would be sufficient to indemnify him and contribute towards his expenses. Mr. Henry was transferring his shares, and was being retained in his position as traveller. There was no animus of any kind against Mr. Henry.

Mr. H. J. Moloney, K.C., who, with Mr. McGonigal, K.C., and Mr. Ernest M. Wood (instructed by Mr. Maurice E. Veale), appeared for Mr. Henry said that his client had been influenced in this litigation not so much by personal considerations as by the loss that might have been entailed by Irish shareholders and the customers.

The negotiations and the settlement had, said Mr. Moloney, been facilitated by Mr. Keating, who had given his services since 1938 without making any claim for the valuable work that he had done as auditor and accountant.

Mr. Justice Black said that he thought that counsel had performed a notable task. The case had taken seven days to open, and it would be very hard to predict how may days or weeks it would have taken to close. He thought that the settlement was very creditable to the good sense of all the parties, and to the skill and devotion of counsel on both sides.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

PROTESTANTISM IN IRELAND

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—I was interested in the many letters which you have recently published, and before you close this correspondence I should very much like to express my opinion. The root of the trouble lies, I feel, in the fact that the great majority of the members of the Church of Ireland, including the dignitaries and the rank and file of the clergy, place their Church first and Christianity second.

Some of your correspondents have referred to uninteresting Church Services. I would like to say that, if 90 per cent. of the sermons I have listened to during the past ten years were published in book form, the average intelligent person would simply ignore them and class them as drivel—and the sermon represents, roughly, one quarter of the entire Church Service.

For obvious reasons I sign myself,
yours, etc.,
"DEJECTED."

Co. Wicklow, November 3rd, 1941.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—Preaching in Christ Church Cathedral yesterday morning, the Rev. Canon Tobias made what to me appears an extraordinary statement. In the course of his sermon he said: "I thank God that the days of Protestant Ascendancy are a thing of the past." Now, I would like the good Canon to answer the following four questions:—

1. What does the Canon mean by "Protestant Ascendancy?"
2. At what period in the history of this country did Protestant Ascendancy exist?
3. What were the results of this Ascendancy?
4. For what particular reason does the Canon thank God that the days of Protestant Ascendancy are a thing of the past?

Personally, I believe that the question of Protestant Ascendancy is quite irrelevant to the controversy at present taking place in your valuable journal.—Yours, etc.,

W. S. W. DONALDSON.

28 Dunluce road, Clontarf,
Dublin, 3rd November, 1941.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—The "Week of Witness" has been mentioned in recent correspondence—by some to prove that Protestantism is not dead, but by others to ask where all the enthusiasm of that week has gone to. May I inform your readers that a movement known as the Fellowship of Witness has been formed to perpetuate the spirit of the "Week of Witness." This fellowship is intended to be a fellowship of the Protestant Evangelical Churches "to bear united witness to the power of Christianity to save the world." The Council of the movement declares it "is willing to co-operate with any section of the community which is striving to direct the social life of our country along truly Christian lines."

The idea underlying the Fellowship of Witness is surely a good one, and if the Church of Ireland takes it up officially and cordially we might be led thereby to the solution of some of our problems.—Yours, etc.,

W. C. G. PROCTOR,
Hon. Secretary.

51 Grosvenor road,
Dublin.
November 3rd, 1941.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—There is little doubt that many of our clergy are blameworthy in the matter of visiting, but the fault is not entirely with them.

When "Parson's Son" admits that he has been in a parish for upwards of a year and has only attended the Church Service on one occasion, surely there is something wrong so far as he is concerned. He needed no clergyman to assist him to write his letter, and similarly he should not need the assistance of a clergyman to walk to church.—Yours, etc.,

L. R. LOVE.

Sandford road, Dublin,
November 4th, 1941.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—Perhaps unconsciously your correspondent, "Parson's Son," points to the real root of the trouble. His letter, appearing in to-day's issue, reveals a regrettable state of affairs in his particular parish as regards the attentiveness of his rector and curate to their social duties. It also reveals a still more regrettable state of affairs as regards his own attentiveness to his religious duties. He forgets, what all too many Protestants forget, that we attend church to worship Almighty God, to give thanks to Him for His goodness and to witness outwardly to our membership of His Church. No shortcomings on the part of the clergy, the organist, the choir, or anything else, excuse us from this duty and privilege, and any suggestion that they do is merely a cloak for our own indolence, ingratitude or lack of spirituality.—Yours, etc.,

"PARSON'S GRAND-DAUGHTER."

DROGHEDA GRAMMAR SCHOOL

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—May I be allowed to thank you for your reference on the 29th ult. to the above school, and your call to all the Protestant Churches not to allow such an ancient institution as this school to disappear through lack of the requisite support.

Such a plea should not fall on deaf ears: instead, it should be the duty and pleasure of all to support the Drogheda Grammar School by all the means in their power.

Now is the time for all to rally round the Headmaster, Mr. W. Fleming Thompson, B.Sc., A.R.C.Sc.I., whose timely letter I read with great interest in your issue of 1st inst.

I would suggest that all should write to Mr. Thompson offering their help, financial or otherwise, in his heroic fight to keep the torch of true learning and culture burning brightly in the ancient city on the Boyne.

I counsel all who love their country and their faith to avoid the easy path of criticism; instead, to join the difficult path of honest co-operation, let us all pull our weight by deeds, and leave empty the armchair so beloved by "the snarling folk who are always right"—viz., the carping critics.—Yours, etc.,

S. W. CARTY, Lt.-Col.

6 Nassau street, Dublin,

SUBSCRIPTIONS AND APPEALS

NEW CHURCH AT CRUMLIN.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—Your Church of Ireland readers may be interested to learn that a new church is being erected in the district of Crumlin, on the outskirts of Dublin. The old village church has become inadequate because of the great building development here in recent years. The Church of Ireland population has increased from 70 to over 1,300 souls during the last fifteen years.

This new church will cost £13,000. The sum of £10,500 has been granted from central sources—i.e., the Representative Church Body, the Diocesan Council and the Marshall Beresford Fund. There is, therefore, a sum of £2,500 still to be raised.

The parish is holding a gift day on Friday next, 7th November, in aid of the building fund. May I use the hospitality of your columns to bring these facts before the notice of former members of the parish whom I could not otherwise contact?

There may be, too, other members of the Church who would care to contribute. It is heartening at this time, when we hear so much about diminishing numbers in the Church, that such a magnificent effort has to be made. I shall be glad to acknowledge any subscriptions.—Yours, etc.,

WALTER J. M. BURROWS.

THE IRISH ANNALS

PROFESSOR MCNEILL'S LECTURE

In the first of a series of lectures on Irish history and literature, at University College, Dublin, Professor Eoin McNeill last night spoke in the Physics Lecture Theatre of the College on "The Irish Annals."

Showing that the contents of the Irish Annals were of a limited kind, Professor McNeill said that they could not be expected to yield anything like a full, true or rightly proportioned view of Irish history. The Annals, he said, belonged to an aristocratic society, and were mainly concerned with the magnates of Church and State. Even within that limitation, they paid little regard to anything normal, and gave prominence to everything abnormal.

Tracing the origin of the Irish Annals to the Latin version of the Chronicle of Eusebius, which was continued in Ireland down to A.D. 610—probably by an Abbot of Bangor, who died in that year—the lecturer said that to this original work was added a section for the history of Ireland.

The Annals, he continued, formed the backbone of Irish history, but the rest of the body would have to be supplied from other sources. An immense amount of research remained before them, and especially before the College, which had inherited an honourable trust from the mother College, which the work of Eugene O'Curry brought into the front rank in Irish historical research.

The lecture was well attended.

IS THE MOTORIST TO BLAME?

"Who is to blame—the cyclist or the motorist?" The answer to this question is contained in the latest figures showing the number of road accidents in Eire, issued by the Garda Siochana. The figures show that since the motor car has been driven from the roads by the petrol shortage, there has been a marked reduction in the number of accidents, the number of people killed and the number of injuries have decreased and, in addition, substantially less material damage has been caused.

During the quarter ending September 30, 850 people were killed and injured—a reduction of 344 on the number for the same period last year and of a total of 1,106 accidents—771 less than last year's—only 40 were fatal, this being a reduction of 12. In 444 cases material damage was caused, compared with 930 during the period ending September 30, 1940.

In the Dublin Metropolitan area only two out of 360 accidents were fatal, and 232 people were injured. The figures for the second period last year show that eight people died and 292 were injured of a total of 557 accidents.

A fine of £900 for exporting a motor lorry from Eire into Northern Ireland was imposed at Castleblayney on Bernard Rafferty, Lower English street, Armagh, who pleaded guilty

RID HIM OF THAT SCRATCHING MISERY!

MAYBE you've often thought "I wish I could cure my dog of scratching." Well, 'cure' is the right word. For scratching is the result of a blood disorder that calls for prompt treatment. When dogs were wild they instinctively sought out certain rare grasses and herbs which Nature intended as blood correctives. Now it rests with you to purify your dog's blood by giving him Bob Martin's Condition Powders.

In winter especially, when short days and uncertain weather prevent your dog from getting his regular exercise, a daily Bob Martin's is essential to his health and happiness.

For these famous powders ensure the pure rich bloodstream which is the foundation of winter fitness. Given regularly, they will make (and keep) your dog a 'plus' dog—and he'll repay you with a closer, cheerier companionship than ever. Start conditioning now! You can get Bob Martin's in packets, 6d. and 1/-, from chemists and corn merchants.

Have you these tell-tale symptoms of a poisoned digestive system; stabbing pains of indigestion and heartburn, the agonising spasms of flatulence and palpitation, and the wearying exhaustion of after-meal misery?

These distress signals from your stomach mean that excess acid is preventing proper digestion. It is causing your food to ferment. But when you take a dose of 'Bisurated' Magnesia, this excess acid is promptly neutralised; pain stops within a few minutes; the inflamed lining of your stomach is soothed and healed and the normal peaceful processes of digestion are restored. Get a bottle of 'Bisurated' Magnesia now. Prices 6d. to 2/6d.

ATHLONE MILL FIRE

ACTION BY SCHOOL OWNERS

(BEFORE THE PRESIDENT OF THE HIGH COURT AND A JURY.)

Hilda Richardson and Elsie Webster, proprietors of Rosleven Boarding and Day School, Northgate street, Athlone, claimed damages against the Athlone Woollen Mills Co., Ltd., for the destruction of their premises by, they say, the spread of the fire that began in the mills on November 11 of last year.

The defendants' state that the fire occurred accidentally, and that no action is maintainable therefor.

The hearing had not concluded when the Court adjourned.

Mr. Michael Binchy, K.C.; Mr. Barra O Briain, K.C., and Mr. Owen Keane (instructed by Mr. I. M. Houlihan) appeared for the plaintiffs; and Mr. Brereton Barry, K.C.; Mr. Paul McCarthy, K.C., and Mr. Robert Hogan (instructed by Messrs. Fair and Murtagh) for the defendants.

When a fire which began in the mills on November 11 spread, the whole town was in danger of destruction, said Mr. Binchy, and would have been destroyed had it not been for the action of the military in blowing up premises to enable them to get the flames, which were being fanned by an 80 miles an hour gale, under control.

The Civic Guards would tell the jury that when they arrived they would have had a good chance to control the fire if a few buckets of water had been available. The better part of an hour had been spent in looking for buckets and trying to get the mill hoses attached to the hydrants.

THE PRICE OF WHISKEY

There is no likelihood of an increase in the cost of whiskey in this country. Although whiskey is fixed at a retail price of 17s. 6d. per bottle in London, it is so difficult to procure that there is almost no limit to the prices which it fetches when sold by auction.

KILL ACID AND END CONSTIPATION

When your stomach is full of excess acid it simply cannot digest your food. Every mouthful sours—your whole meal lies in your stomach a fermenting, lumpy mass. You get wind, nausea, heartburn—CONSTIPATION. Constipation imprisons the poisons and waste matter inside your bowels, soaks your whole system with acid and starts the vicious circle of torture all over again.

But you can break free, if, first, you get rid of the acid.

For years doctors have been recommending the safe brand of antacid 'Milk of Magnesia' as a laxative because it has a double action. The acid in the system is killed. More important still, the bowel is gently relaxed and both cause and effect of constipation move gently out of the system. With the bowels regular and the stomach free from acid, stomach, liver and bowels have a chance to do their job.

So remember that constipation and bad digestion are both due to excess acid. As soon as there is the slightest hint of too much acid, take a spoonful of 'Milk of Magnesia.' Do it for several days and watch how appetite improves, how much more regular you are. And you will wonder how anything so bland and gentle can be so promptly effective. 'Milk of Magnesia' is the trade mark of Phillips' preparation of Magnesia. There is nothing else like it. Try it to-day; you'll be delighted. Obtainable everywhere, 1/3 and 2/6 (treble size), also in tablet form 'Milk of Magnesia' brand Tablets, 6d., 1/-, 2/- and 3/6. Each tablet is the equivalent of a teaspoonful of the liquid preparation.

TEXTILES TO THE FORE

The London Stock Markets were not without a few bright features yesterday, but business was still restrained by Russian war developments. Chief point of interest was increased speculative activity in the Textile group, where Bradford Dyers were in demand on talk of further Preference arrears payments, and Fine Spinners Pref. spurted 10½d. to 15/11½. Cinema shares failed to follow up their recent advance, and eventually Gaumont British Ord. was 3d. off at 7/6. Odeons also felt the effects of profit-taking, the market placing no reliance on merger rumours.

Gilt-edged securities were mostly neglected. Among British Rails, L.M.S. 1923 Pref. were good at 48 and L.N.E. Prefd. strengthened to 27, but the market, as a whole, was idle. Foreign Rails were in good fettle, and B.A.G.S. issues again showed to advantage.

Outside the Textile group, interest in Industrials was extremely limited, but Tobaccos found some support, as a result of which "Bats" and "Imps" moved up to 93/11½ and 122/6, respectively. One or two Breweries continued to improve.

Consolidated Diamonds put on 6d. to 12/3, and both the De Beers issues made progress. Apart from a spurt of 1/3 to 21/10½ in Vlakfonteins, Kaffirs were not materially changed.

Buying of Canadian Eagles gave colour to the Oil section, and, at one time, the shares were ahead of Mexican for the first time for a long period. Mexicans picked up from 11/7½, however, and finally both issues were quoted at 12/-, at which level Canadians were 4½d. up.

LONDON MONEY MARKET

In the Discount market, the day's business was again completely featureless, with a ready outlet for bills and credit in ample supply.

In the silver fixing a small trade demand was satisfied from official sources, prices remaining unchanged at 23½d., both for cash and forward.

WALL STREET RESUMES ADVANCE

NEW YORK, Wednesday.

In the absence of any notably adverse foreign news, Wall Street felt free to reflect favourable earnings and dividends, and resumed Monday's advance, scoring worth while fractional gains over a broad front. Intermittent profit-selling was well absorbed, though an assortment remained rather subdued.

The turnover totalled 930,000 shares, and of the 842 issues traded, 393 advanced, 239 declined and 210 remained unchanged.

The close was steady, with Steels and Chemicals finishing at the day's best.—(Reuter.)
